ANA CONVENTION

This year's 82nd Anniversary Convention of the American Numismatic Association held in Boston is now history.

One person in particular will remember it for a long time. She is Geneva Karlson, recipient of one of the ANA's Medals of Merit. Mrs. Karlson is the ANA Librarian. The picture below shows Mrs. Karlson being presented the award by Mr. Glenn Smedley, ANA Governor with John Jay Pittman, ANA President looking on.

Canadian

The initial issue of Canadian Olympic coins will be released in December 1973. The first four coins are of $5 and $10 denominations and feature a geographical theme. One of the $10 coins will feature a map of the world while the other the Montreal skyline. The $5 coins will feature a map of North America while the other $5 coins the skyline of Kingston, Ontario. All of the coins will have a common obverse that being the Queen's effigy.

In this past December, Canada released a new Bank of Canada 1954 $1 note. It featured the signature combination of R.W. Lawson, the newly appointed deputy governor of the Bank of Canada and G.K. Boyey.

INVESTING

Some people buy numismatic items for among other reasons, the investment potential or if you prefer to call it inflationary hedge in coins. Yet, when they are pondering the alternatives they do not consider the basic compound interest formula.

The compound interest formula is:

$$FV = P (1 + R)^n$$

Where

FV = Future Value

P = Principal

R = Interest Rate Per Period

n = Number of Conversion Periods

Let me give you an example: If, I would have bought five 1968 U.S. proof sets at issue price ($5.00) in 1968 what would be their value today (5 years later) assuming a growth rate of 5% compounded annually?

$$FV = P (1 + R)^n$$

$$FV = $25 (1 + .05)^5$$

$$FV = $25 (1.05)^5$$

$$FV = $25 (1.05 \times 1.05 \times 1.05 \times 1.05 \times 1.05)$$

$$FV = $25 (1.2763)$$

$$FV = $31.91$$

At a growth rate of 8% compounded annually the investment of $25 would be worth $35.06 vs $31.91 at 6%.

You might want to try this formula out yourself on some item, be it coins or whatever you are considering for an investment.
